

My Teacher, Mother Mary

I have had many teachers about healing over the past 25 years, but nothing comes close to what I've learned from Mother Mary, Jesus, Lao-Tzu and Buddha. This writing focuses on Mother Mary and how I became personally acquainted with her and her healing work.

A couple years ago, I was compelled to have a mural painted in my home here in Lexington. I had met the muralist, Andréa Good at the beginning of April, 2012, and shortly thereafter, the mural work began.

I took many pictures during the painting process. During this time, my father made his transition. The day my father passed, he came to my apartment and explained the significance of the mural to the muralist and me, amongst other things. He talked about his transition and although he was gone, he explained that he was still "as real as the grain of rice on my plate." We were having Chinese food that night and THIS experience with my father was incredible, to say the least.

On the day of the unveiling, August 25, 2012, I took a video and more pictures.

The day after the Solar Eclipse in November 2012, the 14th, was a Wednesday, and I will never forget this day. I had my friend Donovan over to my home for a short time. He was actually just stopping by to give me a ride to the auto mechanic shop where my car had just had some work completed. When Donovan arrived and texted me he was outside, I got a strong prompting to invite him in. I didn't understand it, and I asked him if he would like to come in and see the mural. Because he had missed the unveiling, he replied, "Yes, be right in!"

Donovan came into my home, and I was showing him the mural from the front door, walking around to the front of the mural in my living room. As I was getting to the gondola part of the mural, and saying, "There's the man in the gondola," Donovan stepped back, and said, "Wow! You have MOTHER MARY and baby Jesus in your mural! Oh my God! That's amazing!! And look, there's an Angel!"

Somewhat dumbfounded, I stepped to the right of Donovan, turned on the light in my dining room, and looked with amazement, to find the images of Mother Mary and the others in the moon of my mural!

Being a former Los Angeles County Deputy Sheriff for many years, and a licensed Private Investigator since 2007, I quickly opened up my laptop, and started my own personal investigation, perusing the many previous pictures of the mural, especially those taken during the day of the unveiling. I even found some pictures, just a few days prior to this experience, showing clearly, the moon had changed significantly. Sure enough, the moon was entirely different. There were no red rings and no apparent pictures or images of Mother Mary at ALL in the pictures prior to this date. It was my very own apparition of Mother Mary in my little place called, "The Angel's Cove."

When Mother Mary and other images appeared in my mural, I started paying close attention, in a different way than I had before. I started listening more, and I started asking more questions. Why did she appear? What was her role with me, and what was I to learn from her? She was giving me insight into her life. She was teaching me about healing work and she continues to be my teacher today.

These images have changed over the past year and a half and I have documented the changes with video and pictures ever since this discovery. But what's most important is the change within me. What I have learned from Mother Mary influences me on a daily basis!

She has taught me a great deal about healing work and much of what I do at Lifeline Healing is because of her influence, though I receive teaching from many others. I am forever grateful for this woman, Mother Mary.

I wear a necklace that has a pendant of Mother Mary and baby Jesus on it as it often shows up in my pictures. It's common to see those who are of the Catholic faith wearing these. I am not Catholic, and prior to these images showing up in my home, I actually knew very little about Mother Mary. I had a reverence for her, but I simply didn't know many of the intricate details about her life. This has all changed significantly.

Mother Mary is a phenomenal healer. There are many stories written about her, much of which can be read on the Internet. But my knowledge of Mother Mary comes from her directly. I have a great reverence and very close relationship with her now. I encourage everyone who is open to it to learn from her, invite her in, and as John Lennon wrote, allow her to speak 'words of wisdom' to your heart, as she has to his and mine.

Thank you so much for reading this. I have many more stories like this one; stories that have shaped my life. You can read them on my blog at www.lifelinehealing.wordpress.com.
